

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

Core training can be obtained from lectures, but all that is not enough. The theory obtained in the core debriefing needs to be supported by field work, therefore it is very necessary to provide experience to students through the efforts of organizing Field Work Lectures (KKL). For KKL students it is not a taboo thing anymore, not only as a refreshing and vacation event, this activity is also an activity that combines observation, and student tourism visits to institutions or institutions related to their majors. The campus provides this program so that students get provision in the form of experience while learning about the lives of people and the world of work.

Field Work Course (KKL) 2017 International Program for Islamic Economic and Finance (IPIEF) students at the University of Muhammadiyah Yogyakarta are held in the fourth semester with a load of one semester credit unit. This Field Work Lecture was attended by 2017 IPIEF students with a Thailand-Malaysia-Singapore visit. The three countries were chosen because, access is easily accessible with funds that are not too expensive, then from that the three countries are close together. Thailand and Malaysia were chosen because our campus already has cooperation with several campuses in Thailand, while Singapore is chosen, because countries that are advanced and close to Malaysia, it is a shame if we have stepped on Malaysia but not all stepped on Singapore.

In essence, the Field Work Lecture (KKL) has several important objectives, including: 1. To conduct a comparative study of other campuses, 2. To provide direct experience to students, 3. Strengthen the collaboration network between campuses, 4. To enrich the scientific repertoire in order to increase student competence.

B. Problem Formulation

1. What are the series of activities carried out during the Fieldwork?

C. Purpose of Writing

The writing of the Field Work Lecture report (KKL) is not without purpose, therefore the purpose of this paper is:

1. Explain the description of all series of activities during the Field Work Lecture (KKL).

DISCUSSION

Discussion of Several Related Visits

- PERMITHA

This is a visit of a student organization or association in Thailand, in this gathering we UMY students were treated to dinner, then continued with a sharing session. PERMITHA itself is a collection of smart students who get the opportunity to continue their studies in Thailand. They provide motivation and enthusiasm for us juniors to continue fighting for their studies. They also shared about how to get a scholarship in Thailand.

- Visit of Khon Kaen University

During this formal visit we were invited to tour the campus to see the facilities provided by the campus, starting from the library to the classroom, there we held meetings with lecturers and campus staff with the aim of strengthening collaboration between campuses. Not until here, we also merged with students from Khon Kaen and did several activities, such as games, learning culture, and getting to know each other like comparative studies between campuses.

- Visit of the Association of Aisiyah and Muhammadiyah Malaysia

In this visit we merged into an organization, where in the organization there were associations between mothers and several lecturers, here we observed the rate of development of Aisiyah and Muhammadiyah itself.

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

A. Conclusion

The visit provides great benefits to students, where students can develop and think about what they should do in the future after seeing and comparing several countries. In addition, this visit has a positive value as a means of strengthening the cooperative relations between universities.

B. Suggestions

Everything must have a lack of side, as well as the implementation of this Field Work Lecture (KKL) carried out by IPIEF 2017, these shortcomings include:

1. It would be better if the study-related visit was reproduced.
2. Think carefully about what material should be delivered when carrying out the visit.
